Circular Advertising

The man who relies on circular advertising has not stopped to count the cost. Take for instance that he desires to reach 2,500 homes. These circular letters, at the very lowest calculation will cost him $7.50. If he puts a ne cen: stamp on it that would cost $25, if he puts a two cent stamp on, it would cost him $51. Folding and mailing would cost him $2 00. The very che rest grade manila envelope would cost him $1.50; the total of this would be $36 if a one cent stamp is used, and $61 if a two cent is used. Experience has proven that a very large number of these letters never reach their destination. Second, a very large number are thrown into the waste basket or thrown without ever being opened. Very few of them reach the homes.

With a newspaper it is different. The paper is taken home. An advertisment in it has the chance of being read by five people composing an average family Alfred Vanderbilt and the Hubof five. The paper is lent out to the neighbors and read by another average family of five. You can very easily count on a newspaper having a circulation of 2,500 like this one, reaching at least 3,000 homes and read by the average family of five or 15,000 people each

It can readily be seen that the cost of issuing one circular letter would buy between two or three pages of an eight column paper one issue, or a smaller ad of a quarter of a page could be run for two months consecutively for $35, which is the cost of the circular with a one cent stamp, or it could be run for twelve weeks at the cost of a circular with a two cent stamp.

It won't do to fly into the face of establish commercial facts. Successful advertising is not done in spurts. It brings better results when you keep the name steadly before the people even though your advertisement may be a small one. Now is the time to advertise.

Effort May Be Made to Blow Up the Hull to Release the Bodies Coffined by the Lusitania, Which Lies Forty Fathoms Below the Surface-One Torpedo Reported to Have Wrought Destruction of the Big Liner-Thrilling Stories Told by Survivors.

London, May 10 .- The death list of the Lusitania, obtained from official sources, now stands at 1,153, of whom 115 were Americans.

Out of the total of 1,917 passengers and crew aboard, 764 persons, men, women and children, passengers and them. They have reported themselves, or have been reported, and there is just a bare chance that any more will be found alive. Of the 764 survivors 462 were pas sengers and 302 crew. Forty-seven of W. E. Luxon to Chas. D. Lewis, 5 A. this number are in the hospitals at Queenstown seriously ill, of whom 30 Wm, Prather to Shelby Anderson, 10 are passengers and 17 are crew. Some of them will die. There are 144 bodies in the morgues at Queenstown and of this number 87 bodies have been identified, 65 from the passenger list and 22 from the crew.

There were 14 additional identifications of the dead at Queenstown, and among those who were established as Walter Hockaday to Jas. S. Hocka- lost were Charles Plamondon of Chicag. Dr. Orr Jacobus and C. T. Brodcrick. The body of Madame Antoine De Page, wife of the head of the Belgian Red Cross, was also picked out. Life Boats Capsized.

No trace has been found of the body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt nor of Lindon Bates, Jr., Justus Miles Foreman, the writer, nor of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard. Survivors who arrived are confident that Mr. Vanderbilt perished. Another passenger gives some word on the Hubbards. They had come on deck from the saloon after the blow and then turned to go below, apparently to get life belts. The ship went down before they could possibly return. It is the belief of many, confirmed by the reports of admiralty and steamship experts, that the Lusitania herself coffins hundreds of the dead, and there is serious discussion whether an effort shall not be made to blow up the hull in some way to release these bodies. She lies forty fathoms below the surface, which makes it too far down for divers to

"It was hard to attempt to judge the pace of such a thing coming towards one, but it seemed to be traveling about five knots an hour. It was fired just as we came level with the submarine, and struck up between the second and third funnels, under the forward cabins and the bridge. It seemed to me the torpedo must have penetrated clean through. Then a terrific explosion inside blew right up through the ur decks, throwing up a great column of coal dust, water and debris of all kinds. He concluded: "When the Lusitania went down she caused scarcely any vortex, but the water boiled up in great masses in the sea around her, exactly like the Niagara rapids. gage in Rioting. Liverpool, May 10.-Anger against Germany for the torpedoing of the Lusitania burst forth in a riot here. Mobs formed in the streets and raided German-owned shops, Several were literally pulled to pieces by the in-furiated rioters, their contents being thrown over the streets. Police strove in vain to subdue the disturbers. Twenty persons were arrested. The remainder of the crowd attempted a rescue and in the fighting which followed the police were forced to use their batons.

LUSITANIA WAS ARMED

Claim of German Government, Which lauce Official Statement. Amsterdam, May 10 .- The German government issued the following state-ment regarding the sinking of the Lusitania:

"The Cunard liner Lusitania was torpedoed Friday by a German submarine and sank. The Lusitania was naturally armed with guns, as were recently most of the English mercantile steamships. Moreover, as is well known here, she had large quantities owners, therefore, knew to what dan ger the passengers were exposed for what has happened. Germany, on her part, left nothing undone to repeatedly and strongly warn them. The imperial ambassador in Washington even went so far as to make a public warning, so as to draw attention to this danger. The English press sneered at the warning and relied on the protection of the British fleet to safeguard Atlantic travei."

anything of the fate of Alfred G. Vancerbilt. "I am certain he perished, was his reply. He had identified the body of Charles Frohman in the little temporary morgue at Queenstown. He was also asked how long it was be tween the striking of the torpedoes and the sinking of the ship. "Exactly fifteen minutes," was the emphatic answer. The Lusitania was struck at 2:15 o'clock Friday afternoon and sank at 2:30

When the thirty survivors arrived at Euston station the Americans were met by Ambassador Page and his secretary and attaches, J. R. Carter and I. B. Laughlin. They were there to tender every possible aid to the men and women, who came in mostly penniless, all of them in borrowed clothing, some of whom still had their life

Dr. Howard Fisher of New York who was rescued after being in the water three hours, said that the pre cautions taken by the Lusitania were not up to the standard. He said: "I do not see how either the Cunard company or the admiralty can hold themselves free from blame for this tragedy. The authorities allowed a great ship, loaded with valuable car go, to proceed through known dangerous waters without a single torpedo boat as a convoy. I can not say that either discipline or precautions were up to the standard."

Lesson VII. - Second Quarter, For May 16, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxvi, 5-16, Memory Verses, 11, 12-Golden Text, Luke vi, 27-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The lesson today is a record of on of the occasions on which David had Saul completely at his mercy, but he refused to lay hands upon him or to listen to the suggestion of Abishai that David would permit him to smite Saul, for he said, "As the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend into battle and perish" (verses 9, 10). Thus David left the matter wholly in the hands of the Lord, illustrating his own words, "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass" (Ps. xxxvii, 5). I Sam. xxxi tells how his end came.

On this occasion David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster that he might show him how he had him in his power, but did not harm him. David was able to do this without any one knowing it because a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon Saul and his men (verses 11, 12). Compare Gen. ii, 21; xv, 12, and consider Peter's release from prison, though he was bound with chains between two soldiers, and there was a guard at the door of the prison (Acts xii, 6-10, 18, 19). Truly the God of Israel is the! God that doest wonders (Ps. Ixxii, 18; lxxvii, 14). David, with his trophies, stood on the top of a hill afar off and valiant man, he was worthy to die because he had failed to take care of the king, and he told him to look for the king's spear and cruse of water that had been by his bolster (verses 13-16).

Saul knew David's voice and professed to be very grateful to him for sparing his life, asking him to return to him, and saying that he would no knew his enemy too well, and after telling him to send for his spear, they again parted, each going his own way (verses 17-25). This was not the first time that David had Saul in his power, but refused to harm him. See in chapter xxiv how he cut off the skirt of Saul's robe and how Saul then professed penitence and good will and spoke of David's being king some day. Thus Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand (xxiii, 14). In the end of chapter xxiii there is the record of an incident that looked like a close call for David, but Saul was suddenly called off and David through the hatchway, closing the escaped. All through the story we can door as he descended. hear David saying: "The Lord is the strength of my life. Of whom shall I be afraid?" (Ps. xxvii, 1-3.) The cave of Adullam story in chapter xxii is full of interest, beginning with his seeking a place of safety for his father and his mother till he could know what God would do for him and ending with his words of comfort to Abiathar: "Abide thou with me. Fear not, for he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life, but with me thou shalt be in safeguard." Chapter xxv tells of the death and burial of Samuel and then the story of drunken Nabal and his beautiful wife Abigail-beautiful in wise counsel to David and in her conduct toward him. Some of her memorable words are ever with me: "Bound in the bundle of life with the Lord thy God" (xxv. 29), a bundle which cannot be broken, for those to whom He gives eternal life can never perish (John x. 28). Chapters xxvii, xxix, xxx, tell the story of Ziklag, which Achish gave to David, but to which David returned on one occasion to find the town in ruins and the wives, sons and daughters of himself and his 600 followers all gone into captivity. That was one of the most trying times in all David's experience, and they all wept until they had no more power to weep. The grief of David, almost beyond endurance, was heaped up by the threat of his 600 followers to stone him, as if he was the cause of all this, so that David seemed, as far as human sympathy was concerned, to be absolutely alone. Then we read the words which have helped so many, "David encouraged himself in the Lord his God" (xxx, 6). A somewhat similar incident in the life of Paul is recorded in II Tim. iv, enemy, the Amalekites, through the guidance of an almost dead Egyptian servant, whom he restored to life, and how he recovered all-wives, sons, daughters, spoil, nothing lacking to any, and much additional spoil-is a very thrilling record and should encourage us all to wait on the Lord and not to think anything too hard for Him. There were 200 of David's men too weak to join in the pursuit of the enemy, but they, too, shared in the spoils of victory, and David made it a law that those who tarry by the stuff shall share equally with those who go forth to battle (xxx, 10, 24). Let all homekeepers be encouraged. The sin of Saul in the matter of familiar spirits and the witch of Endor is recorded in chapter xxviii. This is a prevailing sin of many today. It is wholly of the devil and is strictly forbidden in Deut. xviii, 9-12. It is not all trickery, but ofttimes some real work of the adversary. The living, those who are truly saved, should seek only the living God and His life giving word. All else is from the devil, and it will be a night

A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama

By ARTHUR B. REEVE

The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

Presented in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a series of murders and other crimes. The principal clue to the criminal is the warning letter which is sent the victims, signed with a "clutching hand." The latest victim of the mysterious assassin is Taylor Dodge, the insurance president. His daughter, Elaine, employs. Craig Kennedy, the famous scientific detective, to try to unravel the mystery. What Kennedy accomplishes is told by his friend Jameson, a newspaper man. Enraged at the determined effort which Elaine and Craig Kennedy are making to put an end to his crimes, the Clutching Hand, as this strange criminal is known, resorts to all sorts of the most diabolical schemes to put them out of the way. Each chapter of the story tells of a new plot against their lives and of the way the great detective uses all his skill to save this pretty girl and himself from death.

An hour or so later, Elaine, whose mind was now in a whirl from what had happened, decided to make a call on her lawyer and the confidant of her father, Perry Bennett. As Elaine entered his private office, back," answered Aunt Josephine, with Bennett rose to greet her effusively some surprise. "Why? Is it anything and they exchanged a few words. "I mustn't forget to thank you for those lovely roses you sent me," she exclaimed at length. "They were beautiful, and I appreciated them ever so much.

A moment later Bennett led the conversation around until he found an opportunity to make a tactful alfusion to the report of their engagement in the morning papers.

He had leaned over, and now at tempted to take her hand. She withdrew it, however. There was some thing about his touch which, try as she might, she could not like. Was it mere prejudice or was it her keen woman's intuition?

Bennett looked at her a moment suppressing a momentary flash of anger that had reddened his face, and entrolled himself as if by a superhuman effort.

"I believe you really love that man Kennedy," he exclaimed in a tone that was almost a hiss. "But I tell you. Elaine, he is all bluff. Why, he has been after that Clutching Hand now for three months-and what has he accomplished? Nothing!"

He paused. Through Elaine's mind there flashed the contrast with Kennedy's even temper and deferential manner Bennett, by another effort, seemed Might I ask"-began the secretary. "You keep quiet," ordered Kennedy with a nod to me to watch the fellow You are under arrest-and the less ou say the better for you." I shall never forget the look that rossed the secretary's face. Was it the surprise of an innocent man? Taking the man's place at the machine Kennedy removed the legal paper that was in it and put in a new sheet. Then he tapped out, as we "Look, Walter," he exclaimed as he drew out the paper from the machine. I bent over, and together we compared the T's with those in the Clutching Hand letter, the paper from the bomb and the letter which Craig had taken from Elaine's desk.

As Craig pointed out the resemblances with a pencil my amazement gradually changed into comprehension and comprehension into conviction. The meaning of it all began to dawn on me. The writing was identical. There were no differences! While we were locked in the secretary's office Bennett and Elaine were continuing their chat on various social topics. Suddenly, however, with a glance at the clock, Bennett told Elaine that he had an important letter to dictate and that it must go off at once. She said that she would excuse him a few minutes, and he pressed a button to call his secretary. Of course, the secretary did not aprear. Bennett left his office, with some annoyance, and went into the adjoining room, the door to which Kennedy had not locked. He hesitated a moment, then opened the door quietly. To his astonishment he saw Kennedy, the secretary and myself apparently making a close examination of the typewriter. Gliding, rather than walking back into his own office, he closed the door and locked it. Almost instantly fear and fury at the presence of his hated rival, Kennedy, turned Bennett, as it were, from the Jekvll of a polished lawyer and lover of Elaine into an insanely jealous and revengeful Mr. Hyde. The strain was more than his warped mind could bear. With a look of intense horror and loathing Elaine watched him slowly change from the composed, calm, intellectual Bennett she knew and respected into a repulsive, mad figure of

As Elaine, transfixed with terror, watched Bennett's astounding metamorphosis, he ran to the door leading to the outer office and hastily locked that also.

Then, with his eyes gleaming with rage and his hands working in murderous frenzy, he crouched nearer and nearer, toward Elaine. She shrank back, screaming again through the panels. Then he thrust ing two dead Chinamen. Pulling out his hand through the opening and turned the catch. As we flung ourselves into the room Bennett rushed into a closet in a corner, slamming the door behind him. It tually prevented anyone from breaking through. Kennedy and I tried vainly, however, to pry it open. While we were thus endeavoring to force an entrance Bennett, in a sort of closet; had put on the coat, hat and mask which he invariably wore in the character of the Clutching Hand. Then he cautiously opened a secret door in the back of the closet and slowly made an exit. Meanwhile the secretary had been doing his best to revive Elaine, who was on the floor, hysterical and half unconscious from the terrible shock she had experienced.

Intent on discovering Bennett's whereabouts, Kennedy and I examined the wall of the office, thinking there might be some button or secret spring which would open the closet door. While we were doing so the door of a large safe in the secretary's office gradually opened, and the Clutching Hand emerged from it, stepping carefully toward the door leading to found the clerks excitedly attempting to open the door of the secretary's office, which was locked. Kennedy drew a revolver and shot through the lock, bursting open the door.

They rushed into the room. Clutching Hand was apparently seated in a chair at a desk, his face buried in his arms, while I was apparently disappearing through the door. The Clutching Hand, however, managed to elude capture again. While these exciting events were occurring in Bennett's office some queer doings were in progress in the heart of Chinatown. Deep underground, in one of the catacombs known only to the innermost members of the Chinese secret societies, was Tong Wah, popularly known as "the hider," engaged in some mysterious work. Before him were eight odd-shaped Chinese vials, and from these he was carefully measuring certain proportions, as if concocting some powerful scruples. After exchanging a few words he finally agreed to aid the Clutching Hand. As Bennett opened his mouth to drink it, Long Sin with a laugh slowly pulled the cup away and poured its contents on the floor.

In the year 1840, the Lass of seventeen who failed to get her Hooks on some roaming specimen of the Opposite Gender was in danger of being whispered about as an Old Maid. Celibacy was listed with Arson and Manslaughter.

Rufus was destined to be an Early Victorian Rummy, but he could lift a Saw-Log, and he would stand without being hitched, so Susan nailed him the third time he came snooping around the Toll-Gate.

Rufus did not have a Window to hoist or a Fence to lean on. But there is no Poverty in any Pocket of the Universe until Wealth arrives and begins to get Luggy.

Susan thought she was playing in rare Luck to snare a Six-Footer who owned a good Squirrel Rifle and could out-wrassle all Comers.

The Hills of Pennsylvania were hecoming congested, with Neighbors not more than two or three miles apart, so Rufus and his Bride decided to hit a New Trail into the Dark Timber ss West Relatives of the Young Couple staked them to a team of Pelters, a Muley Cow, a Bird Dog of dubious Ancestry, an Axe, and a Skillet, and started them over the Divide towardthe perilous Frontier, away out yen-

The wonderful cures that a being made by this remarkable new lemedy are almost beyond belief.

A young lady from Ottumwa, lowa, for many years suffered from a baccase of eczema. Her face was a sight to behold; all covered with red blotches, ustules and pimples. So unsightly as her appearance she gave up all socal life. Failing to find relief with doctor and remedies, she became desponder and discouraged. After a few weeks treatment Amolox liquid and ointment, the scaly redness disappeared, pustules healed and she was entirely cured. A few months following her mother wrote that Amolox had done wonders for her daughter, and she was married last week.

An Old Relic

Col. David G. Martin while stiring the soil on his farm in Rockcastle county came across what appeared at first to be a trifle smaller than an old fashioned one cent copper piece and although rusty the words were found to be on one side "General Winfield Scott, First in Peace and First in War." on the other side "Union and the Constitution Forever". It is supposed to have been a bronze badge used by Genpresidency of the U.S. in 1852 when he was defeated by Franklin Pierce the democratic candidate.

He may look seedy now, but ten years from now he may be president of some bank, pastor of some church, judge of some court or physician to some people. Just because a boy lives in town, wears two kinds of socks, parts his hair in the middle, sucks a cigarette, curls his hair on his mother's curling tongs, and has a daddy with spondulix to burn, that is no sign that he is going to run this country in the future. We'll put our money on the forks of the creek.

"I DO LOVE A TREE"

DO LOVE A GOOD

TREE. There it stands, so strong and sturdy and yet so beautiful, a very type of the best sort of man. How proudly it lifts its bare head to winter storms, and with what a full heart it rejoices when the spring has come again! How grand its voice is, too, when it talks with the wind! A thousand aeolian harps cannot equal the beauty of the sighing of a great tree in leaf. All day it points to the sunshine and all night to the stars, and thus, passionless and yet full of life, it endures through the centuries, come storm, come shine, drawing its sustenance from the bosom of its mother earth.— Rider Haggard.

For two or three minutes Sunday talked in chaste English, telling how Niagara with toothpicks and cambric good conduct and morals were not in themselves sufficient and that, no matter how noble a man might be in every other particular, he would be rejected from heaven unless he had received the Holy Ghost. He was heard with poite attention and silence until he departed from the humdrum style of theological exposition and shouted:

"This doctrine of salvation by charity crawled out of the pit of hell. Old man," pointing out a baldheaded man in the front row, "if you believe begin saving up money to pay a faw in any such trash as that I advise you to get down on your knees and pray. "I am not responsible for the condi tions on which salvation rest. That's you can't see the hole in the heel of God's affair. I am only preaching it.

"If you don't like the truth this is the worst place in Paterson for you to come to, let me tell you that. You send for firemen when your house is on fire, don't you? You want a policeman when a thief robs you. You want a doctor when you are sick, and when your soul is thirsty you want the Holy

I do not know that this is true, but I do know that this represents the sensitiveness of the Holy Ghost, which is grieved and wounded every time that you do any thing that is wrong Many Are Devil's Children.

"I do not believe in this cant about the universal fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. We are not the children of God unless we are Christians. There are people in this world who are the children of the devil. All who are not saved are the children of the devil. You may say that all are creatures of God, but so are the beasts, so is the hog at his trough, but there is a heap of difference between being a creature of God and the son of God. "Faith can tumble mountains into the sea. You remember when Joshua was fighting the enemies of God, and had a big job on his hands, he saw the sun declining in the skies and called out to God that, if he would stop the sun and give him more daylight, he would whip that rum soaked, idol worshiping crowd to a frazzle. Then God gave word to the sun to stand still until his servant Joshua gave him the high sign. "There are three kinds of Christians. The first is those who become members of a church as insurance against eternal burning. The second is those who talk such trash as 'latent power.' God and the Holy Ghost are not in the church for them, and to them the church is but a third rate amusement bureau or a fashionable club. Family Reunion

Southerners resent materialism as a Yankee product and welcome a chance to prove that sentiment yet lives as ever, south of the Mason and Dixon line. Where, but in our south, would one hundred and six people gather together at a "homey" old farm house for the purpose of letting a deaf old man know he was loved and appreciated.

In the less fertile part of Madison is a farm that for six generations has be longed to the Parke family. The low beamed ceilings of the quaint old farm house have looked down upon births, marriages and deaths until an hour spent beneath them with one of the family is as a page from history. Here, fifty five years ago, April thirtieth, Merrel Parke was born. In his twelfth year he became deaf and was educated at Danville's Deaf and Dumb Institute There he met and married Anna Harvey, beginning a life so free from selfishness, from prejudice, and from bickerings, that it seems the very best of childhood has been developed with ears shut to the commonplace, he has thought for himself and arrived at con clusions as original and refreshing as while things in the accepted sense of that much abused phrase but has been a God fearing, self respecting citizen, to the extent that his friends delight to

The gathering had been planned, each family knowing what part of the dinner to bring so that a feast of meal, vegtables, salads and ices bountifully served the crowd. All were relatives or neighbors and the loving words and gifts they brought to this necessarily lonely man will gladden every remaining day of his life.

Among the families represented were those of Tom Parke, Jim Parke, Waller Parke, John Parke, Mrs. Bettie Parke, Mrs. Eliza Parke, Sam Parke, Richard Parke, Martin Gentry, Charles Gentry, P. Gentry, John Andrew Turpin, Sim Turpin, Robert Turpin, Haden Turpin, Charles Tipton, George Tipton, O. A. The truth in human nature is pretty much the same everywhere, only there is more of it in the city than in the country. It is equally true that in the city great good enters. Some of the finest types of manhood and woman hood dwell there. The great organized agencies that are a blessing to mankind are located in the cities. The worst men may be found there; also the best. Evil is entrenched; so are great moral forces focused. The great moral battles have always been fought in the cities. The first apostles and disciples of Jesus worked in the cities to begin in Jerusalem. The history Cities are centers. In them are concentrated commercial, political, social, literary and moral power. Study the great cities of history, Babylon, Athens, Rome, Jerusalem. These stand for their civilizations. Nations rose and fell with them. The world follows its great cities-for good or ill. Here wealth piles up her treasures, art blossoms into flower, heroism is common place, religion tunes her loftiest song. Universities, hospitals, cathedrals, art galleries, libraries, museums, open their doors to all. Culture, urbanity, good clothing, comforts, luxuries, are within the common possibility of him who half tries. The city may spell Her arms are full of gifts to her own vided they be able and courageous. You Are the City!

Did you read "The Maw of the Monster?" It pictured the lonely and helpess feeling of one who came to the city for the first time. The mass of humanity seemed a monster. But stand back, confident, unafraid. Resolve this strous crowd into its componen parts. They are humans like yourself Stand with me for five minutes and look.
